Steven,

I have had a lot going on, including the passing of my mother from cancer recently. I am still working with Ernie Croot on the manuscript. I will not be able to resubmit by the deadline. What are my options?

sorry to hear

do not worry about the deadline take as long as you want if it is a year or two that's fine what I do not want is another paper that we have to pause the referee process - that is not fair to the reviewers so take whatever time you need to have it written up well and completely

I understand. The updated draft is coming along very well. When I do resubmit it, will the manuscript be given a fresh, fair start in the JNT queue? The reason I ask is that you mentioned before that you were likely to reject. If that is still the case, it might be better for me to submit elsewhere so I do not have to wait many months for a rejection...

we will treat it as a new submission, but this is your last chance with the paper we cannot start and stop again, that's not fair how about this: take as much time as you need, when you think it is ready send to me and I'll try and get a quick opinion
